

Should I get tested for COVID-19?

The health department recommends that you get tested for COVID-19 if:

- You were exposed to someone with COVID-19 or attended an event with a large crowd 7 or more days ago OR
- You have a cough, shortness of breath, or two of the following symptoms: fever, chills, muscle pain, sore throat, headache, new loss of taste or smell

Where can I get tested for COVID-19?

First, contact your regular medical provider, like your primary care physician or a local health center. Some Federally Qualified Health Centers (FQHCs) are providing testing, or you can be tested at a public testing site. Public sites and FQHCs listed below are organized by region, including instructions about how to schedule an appointment. Testing does not require money, insurance, or proof of citizenship.

These sites change often. For the most up to date information about where you can get tested, call 1-800-722-7112 or visit www.phila.gov/testing.

When going to a testing site, wear a surgical or cloth mask over your nose and mouth.

I got tested, now what?

It may take 2 – 6 days to learn your results. During that time, get rest, stay hydrated, and stay at home away from others (including those you live with!) while you wait for your results. Pay attention to how you're feeling. If you are having trouble breathing or your cough is getting worse or you have a high fever over 101° for more than 3 days, call your doctor or go to a hospital emergency department.
